

I want to be the judge of the information that I choose to pay for. It is not the responsibility of some local broadcasting company to determine what information I am allowed to receive if I choose to pay for the service. What's next? Will the internet be limited to only local information as well? They are making money off of subscriptions mainly, so they don't have to worry about losing advertising revenues which I am sure is the main issue! Am I still allowed to watch The Weather Channel at home? LEAVE XM RADIO ALONE!!!
